LOST PLUMAGE

I.
Come gather around me and I will declaim,
The tale of a maid and misfortune that came.
It was quite undeserved, of that I'm assured,
But because she was honest, it must be endured.

II.
Lost spring, like some others, she traveled abroad
And, as here, over there she was simply adored.
Then our friend Kaiser Bill had to start up
this muss,
But why should we worry, she's come back to us!

III.
Yes, she's come back to us, but there's more yet than that,
She had in her baggage, a beautiful hat,
And a secret I'll tell, though perhaps indiscreet.
This creation was purchased quite near Chestnut street.

IV.
She had no intention to be a deceiver
So she just told the truth, but they would not believe her,
And the harrid inspector in Boston, it's stated,
Decided right then it must be confiscated.

V.
After very much pleading and tears, I presume,
She was kindly allowed to take home just one plume.
And we trust that quite soon, just to prove
there's no malice,
That plume may be seen over features of Alice.

FEAST OF CHERRY BLOSSOMS

Society Takes Part in Pantomime for Benefit of Industrial Art School and Museum.

Society, with a large and capital S, appeared in force last night at the elaborate affair given at the Bellevue-Stratford under the auspices of the board of managers of the School of Industrial Art. It was called the Feast of Cherry Blossoms.

The affair was opened with a little playlet entitled, "The Flower of the Yeddo," given by members of the Plays and Players Club. There were several specially dances. Mrs. J. Walter Biele, Miss Genevieve Gibbs and Miss Ethel McMillan have several times before appeared at affairs of this kind, but last night a new star appeared on the horizon in the person of Miss Georgianna Brown, who took the part of a Japanese youth who did some wonderful dancing. Another feature was the dancing of the hesitation center and the lulu lulu, two dances of this season by Miss Margaret Megargee and Mr. Gross, of Castle House, New York. Mr. Gross came over specially for the occasion.

Among the debutantes who took part in the feast were Miss Jean N. Thompson, Miss Eliza Reath, Miss Elizabeth E. Wister, Miss Virginia Roberts, Miss Elizabeth Thompson, Miss Alice C. Thompson, Miss Jean C. Bullitt, Miss Anna Binney Brinton, Miss Caroline Ives Brinton, Miss Katherine Seeler, Miss Evelyn Chew, Miss Cordelia Biddle, Miss Kate Furness Jayne, Miss Frances Tyson, Miss Molly Wood Bally and many others.
